

Juris Illuminae Submissions Policy.

Juris Illuminae's publication offers are all contingent upon the author's compliance with this Submissions Policy.

Please read the Submissions Policy in full before making your submission.

As an online supplement to the Singapore Law Review Journal, Juris Illuminae aims to publish succinct and readable articles. This includes case notes on recent judgments and companion pieces to full-length articles published in the Journal.

How to submit

Contributions should be submitted in electronic form, in a Microsoft Word document, to juris@singaporelawreview.com.

In addition, before you submit your article for the first time, please:

1. Download the Juris House Style and apply it to your document; and
2. Make a .zip folder of all the digitally-available authorities which you have referenced in your article (including cases, periodicals and websites), and attach this folder to your submission.

Style and Formatting Guidelines

Length. We welcome submissions that are 1000 – 5000 words long. However, our primary focus is on substance, rather than form—a longer article does not necessarily give rise to a higher chance of publication with us. We are also happy to consider submissions that slightly exceed or fall below this recommended word limit.

Language. All manuscripts should be written in British English.

Citations. All citations should be presented as footnotes and should comply with the 8th Edition of the Canadian Guide to Uniform Legal Citation (Toronto: Carswell), otherwise known as the “McGill Redbook”.

Format. All submissions should be made in the Juris House Style and saved as a Microsoft Word document. To download the Juris House Style, please click here.

Data. For articles with empirical components, we strongly recommend the submission of datasets, and we may request these files before deciding whether to extend an offer of publication.

Conflicts of Interest. We require that all conflicts of interest be disclosed at the point of submission. Authors must identify any organisations that provided funding for the research or writing of the manuscript, as well as any personal or family financial interests that might be pertinent. Authors must also disclose their involvement in any litigation that is referenced in or relevant to their manuscript. Such conflicts of interest will be disclosed in the published version of the article.

Our Submissions Policy is available for download in PDF format here.